System	Asynchronous research assistant using Wikipedia, arXiv, Tavily, Gemini, PostgreSQL, Docker and Streamlit.

Individual responsibilities

Team member	Primary contribution	Review / verification	Share
Samir Həsənov GitHub: Hasanov57	Core research workflow and bounded concurrency; CLI and rendering; Streamlit interface; integration and end-to-end coordination.	Reviewed system integration, user flows and final deliverables; verified live and offline demonstrations.	55%
Elmir Əsgərov GitHub: elmiresgerov	Wikipedia, arXiv and Tavily source services; Gemini/LLM adapter; retry, timeout and rate-limit logic; cited-answer synthesis and validation.	Reviewed research quality, source failure handling, citations and documentation deliverables.	24%
Ramil Məmmədəliyev GitHub: ramilmammadaliyev	Repository abstraction; in-memory and PostgreSQL storage; TTL cache; configuration and logging; scripts, packaging and Docker deployment.	Reviewed persistence, configuration, container deployment and reproducible project setup.	21%

Shared work and validation

All members reviewed the complete submission, tested the integrated application, checked that secrets were excluded from version control, and prepared to explain the architecture, asynchronous workflow, failure handling, persistence, benchmark and user interface. Final verification recorded 64 passing tests, 73.56% branch-aware coverage, passing Ruff and strict mypy checks, and a 2.64x concurrent speedup in the live benchmark.

Declaration

Each confirmation below must be provided by that named member. Samir has confirmed electronically; the other confirmations remain pending.
